This is Why We Breed by Sharon Gardner

*I received this email from a puppy family. This made my year!!!
Since my first Swissy from the Polyana Kennel was sick all of his life
I decided I would breed Swissys that made families happy!
If I produced a show puppy even better!*

Dear Sharon,

I hope that all is well with you and that you are pleasantly busy with your pups and grandchildren. While I was on a walk with Ellie today, I was thinking about what a wonderful dog she is and I wanted to drop you a note to say thank you. Ellie is so sweet and kind. She is completely devoted to our family and is particularly wonderful with the kids. She loves to cuddle and still nurses on her blankie! She has a playful relationship with Will, but is noticeably gentle when they play tug of war. Her relationship with Harper is very special. As an example, last night, Harper was crying in her room and Ellie came from across the house and put her face right up in Harper's face. Then, she laid down next to Harper and stayed for hugs until Harper calmed down. Ellie is strikingly beautiful and everyone asks about her breeder. And we tell them about you and Tillie, Maggie, and Ted. Don't get me wrong, Ellie can still be a nutball, and she definitely gets too excited about guests. But she is a great girl and I just wanted to say thank you.

Kate

Dear MAGS members,

We are past the winter holidays and most of us are looking forward to warm weather, green trees, growing grass and bright colored flowers. I know I am, especially as I watch the snow and freezing rain come down outside my living room window.

That, however, is not the only thing on my mind...the other thing is our MAGS newsletter. I have seen many well deserved positive comments after an issue comes out. I know our editor, Laurie Grace appreciates the affirmation. We all enjoy the features which have allowed us to learn about fellow club members. It also provides important information about our breed. What readers may not realize is the difficulty Laurie has in getting information and pictures to print. So let's explore that issue.

I see so many interesting pictures of Swissies on the MAGS Facebook page. They are shared frequently and liberally. Yet, unless, the pictures are taken at an event, they are rarely posted to the newsletter. Your Swissie does not have to win a ribbon or a prize to appear in the newsletter. We just want to see how your Swissie(s) provide love and enjoyment in your lives. Please do not think you have to be invited to send pictures...just send them. Remember....not all our members go on Facebook and they will never have a chance to witness all those great moments unless they are shown in the newsletter!

A few of us, including me, feel like newsletter "hogs" because our pups are in the show ring or compete in other activities and their pictures are in almost every newsletter. There are many MAGS members who show their dog, participate in AKC events, earn a CGC, become certified as a therapy dog, etc. - please share your highlights. If you do not have a show picture...just take a candid and brag about what your pup has done!! Let us all share these moments of enjoyment!

If you want to share pictures and you are not quite sure how to send a picture from your phone or your computer or scan and send pictures....don't let that stop you! If you don't have a technology guru in your neighborhood, contact Denise Mitterando who has offered to walk you through the process.

“Welcome to the Family!”

My husband and I shot each other one of those “Um, okay” looks when Dr. Chris Gisewhite first whispered those words to us on Memorial Day weekend of 2016. We had just made the 3 & 1/2 hour trip out to SeaVaRidge to meet and potentially take home our very first Swissy. Our kids, the two-legged variety, had been begging for a dog for years. As soon as we laid eyes on Zydeco Zing, we knew she was our Snickers.

See, we had already chosen her name ...

more than a year before on Mother’s Day in 2015. Kevin, my large-dog-loving husband, was uncompromising with his list of breeds ... basically anything that weighed just as much, if not more, than me. Among his list of Bull Mastiff and Great Dane was the most beautiful tri-color breed whose expressive eyes I instantly fell in love with. The more we read and researched, the more convinced we became that a Greater Swiss Mountain Dog was everything we needed to complete our family. Playing to their caramel coloring and our family’s love of sweets, we tossed around names like S’mores and Rollo until realizing that Snickers said it all. We had the name; now we just needed the dog.

On a random whim that following March we made the trek to a ...

Jim Rau dog show in Edison, NJ. I mean, how could we really commit to a breed that we had never met in person? We meandered the aisles with our then 9-year-old daughter, Kylie, and 7-year-old son, Conor, seeking out a Swissy to officially meet and greet. And boy did we luck out when we happened upon Caboo and Herbie! I’m pretty sure we asked to pet the dogs before we even introduced ourselves to their humans, but we’ve since learned that this is the magic of the breed and true Swissy owners are never insulted by the slight. Within a few short minutes of experiencing Caboo’s grace and Herbie’s love, we were sold. (Oh, and Denise Mitterando and Frank Caputo were awesomely friendly as well!) Needless to say, that day we made up our minds and were in search of a new pup.

The Rosander Family

I'm sure I'm not alone in declaring ...

Denise Mitterando as our family's Swissy Godmother. Within hours, we were texting and Facebook messaging Denise all sorts of questions. Her responses were quick and encouraging, and definitely fueled our growing obsession with finding ourselves a puppy! Trouble is, we were also raising two very active kids and holding down two very time-consuming jobs. The thought of adding a puppy to the mix of soccer games, gymnastic practices, bus-stop routines, work deadlines, late-night meetings and everything else was just too much for me to bear. For months, I dragged my husband on a roller-coaster ride between "yes, we got this" and "who the hell are we kidding" until the text that changed our lives. "I know you've been looking for a puppy, but how about a young lady?" Denise wrote one fateful morning in May. Kevin and I locked eyes and the rest is history!

Within a day, we were on the phone with ...

Dr. Chris asking all sorts of questions about Zydeco Zing, a two-year-old show dog who unfortunately/fortunately wouldn't be able to breed. After learning about this little lady, we made plans to go meet her the first weekend in June. But as all the stars continued to align, our Memorial Day weekend plans were thwarted when Kevin's mom got the stomach bug. Instead of heading down the shore to visit with his parents, we were all of a sudden on our way to PA!

I'd like to say wholeheartedly that the moment we laid eyes on Snickers was magical ...

but I'd be lying not to admit that my first thought was "she's huge!" Within moments, though, she took to me and Kylie and we could see the endearing relationship she shared with Dr. Chris. My husband was a little put off, getting a dog was after all really his thing, but we had nothing to worry about.

Within days of being home with us, Snickers took to Kevin like paper to glue. She had found her new alpha.

The Rosander Family

Over those first few months, we learned about all of Snicker's ...

idiosyncrasies, especially her fear of laundry baskets, taco shells cracking, and loud, sudden movements made by 7-year-old boys. We also fell in love with her cuddles and snuggles. She came to every soccer game as the kids' biggest fan, and always drew compliments from strangers both on her beauty and behavior. As we sauntered through Somerset Patriots Stadium for Bark in the Park, paraded through downtown Coatesville to welcome Christmas, and practiced agility training with friends from all over, we saw Snickers come out of her shell more and more. She developed relationships with Caboo, Gideon, Zeke, Oliver, Dante, Fiona, Kona, Teddy, Maggie, and especially Herbie as we built friendships with all of their humans. Hanging out together became as much about all of us as it was for all of them. We made 2-hour treks for birthday pool parties, took long walks along the river, and rented out Doggy Days Daycare Center just to be together. It was seeing Snickers with other Swissies that convinced us we needed another. And so the seed was planted.

The Rosander Family

Just before Christmas 2016, when we heard that Greg & Lara Coyle were adopting a new ...

puppy from SeaVaRidge, we immediately tried to jump on board. Since their Zeke is our Snickers' litter-mate, how cool would it be for us to share another set of siblings? We missed our chance though, as all the puppies had been claimed by the time we reached out to Dr. Chris. This disappointment didn't last long, however. Shortly after Christmas, Dr. Chris shared another precious pup in need of rehoming: TwinPeak's 2-year-old Aeronca. Her face was priceless and her deep Swissy eyes spoke to use through the photograph. As an added bonus, she was Snickers' half-Swisster and the mother of the Coyle's new puppy, Zuri! We immediately knew we had found our Twix (yes, we had already picked out her name as well as so that we had a perfect pair!).

For weeks, we kept the secret from the kids.

It was fun to talk about "Twix" as this imaginary Swissy that we would have some day, without them having any idea we were just a few days away from bringing her home. As we set off one afternoon to a fictitious Swiss weight pull (driving to PA to spend time with Swissies was so normal to the kids at this point that they didn't even question us), I had a special snack packed to share the news. When they got hungry halfway into the trip, I passed them each a Twix candy bar. Conor caught on quickly, but Kylie's face as she processed that we were actually driving to pick up our Twix was priceless! Those are the moments life is made of.

Spotlight on Members!

The Rosander Family

Since adopting Twix, we have learned how unique dogs of the same breed can be.

Despite both being daughters of Bunker (GCH CH TwinPeaks Dunes of the Cape) and only 3-weeks apart in age, Snickers and Twix couldn't be more different in many ways. Where Snickers likes to run and frolic, Twix prefers to "conserve energy". While Snickers likes to run and frolic, Twix prefers to "conserve energy". While Snickers can stare at a snack dropped on the floor with incredible self-discipline that even I envy, Twix has caused us to install a self-closing pantry door and secure our garbage can lid with a bungee cord. Snickers tends to sleep more soundly while Twix has become a Facebook sensation with her characteristic snoring videos. No matter how different they are, though, one thing remains the same: the unconditional love of a Swissy and the sheer joy they bring to us each and every day.

Our days have been filled ...

with impromptu gatherings at friends' homes and local breweries, painting parties with our pups as the prompt, swimming in public pools before they close for the season, lazy days on the couch, hikes to new heights, and countless other memories made. We are so fortunate to have met an amazing set of friends in Denise; Greg, Lara and the girls; Tonia; Tim and Anthony; Loretta and Greg; Sharon and Frank, Jackie and their girls, too. Each and every one of you have become our extended Swissy Family, and what a family it is!

Spotlight on Members!

The Rosander Family

But like with any family, there are good times and there are bad.

As I sit here writing this, Snickers is curled up next to me sleeping soundly exactly how she was the night last March when we discovered a lump on her leg. A mast cell tumor. An aggressive one. After two surgeries, eight chemotherapy injections, and months of ingesting specialized tinctures and supplements, we enjoyed this past Fall “cancer free”. But we knew it wouldn’t last forever. The cancer is back, and back with a vengeance. We’ve built a new routine around morning chemo pills, more injections, daily pat downs to monitor any physical changes, and a constant guessing game of which foods she’ll tolerate. We knew this was coming; we’ve been warned by every doctor she has seen but there’s nothing that can prepare you for the gut-wrenching truth you can’t ignore. Believe me when I tell you that if love could conquer cancer, this girl would’ve been cured in minutes! But that’s not the way life works, and as scary as the future is in this very moment, I wouldn’t have traded one second of the love she has given and continues to give us. There is something truly special about this breed, and only a heart that’s been touched by a Swissy knows that it’s indescribable. So hug your furry friends every chance you get, indulge them in that big bully stick, let them romp and wallop through the mud. Because you never know which is your last embrace, or stinky snack, or dirty paw walking through the door. Kevin and I are bracing ourselves for what’s to come, but we know that with our Swissy Family by our side, their love and laughter will guide us through.

Canine Learning Experience

Many club members and their families helped in the planning and erection of our breed booth. Out of all the breed booths judged that day, our MAGS club booth won, "Honorable Mention".

Milo making friends

As the educational committee representative, I am very proud to be a part of this organization of members willing to take the time from their busy schedule to promote the GSMD at the Canine Learning Experience. This is just one way of showing people how great our breed really is!

As Our club also honored a Swissy who notified his family not once, not twice, but three times of a possible burglar and/or intruder on their property. His name: "Cabro's Two Nice N Easy Tugger", owned by Katie Schomp and family.

Again, this is just one way of showing people how great this breed really is!

Also included in this event were various clinics, AKC regulation trials in obedience and rally, and other dog-related events including the "Parade Of Breeds". We had seven Swissies walking in the parade including one pulling his cart. We loved every minute!

Sunday's events included a puppy match and clinics. We had three puppies competing in the 6-9 month age group. Many people attending the match were surprised at how calm our puppies were that day as compared to other breeds.

There were sooo many families "loving" on our Swissies.

What a great experience and I thank everyone who helped us, "Make it happen"!

Milo getting some lovin' from Denise Mitterando

12 Swissys and six other friends participated in an introduction to Barn Hunt with Darlene from Tail Waggin Events in Robbinsville, NJ on February 23rd.

Barn Hunt is the fastest growing dog sport to hit North America since dog agility, and it is becoming more popular every day. This growth is no surprise-Barn Hunt is great fun for people and dogs! It takes a dog's natural instinct to find quarry, builds in a requirement for teamwork, and offers plenty of challenge and strategy for both dog and human.

The Guest of Honor

Jim Hauptly & Trooper

Barn Hunt provides excellent physical and mental stimulation for your dog, and builds confidence. Through their training, teams build stronger bonds and better communication and can develop a real "conversation" that benefits the pair at home and beyond. This sport is often found by people looking for "jobs" for their dogs, be they older senior dogs that have retired from a vibrant agility career, dogs that love crittering at home, or dogs that are working through social challenges. There are all types and all motivations of dogs

Tara & Bobby Lloyd with Yeti

Wayne Hecker & TJ

“Initial introductions to Barn Hunt are often straightforward, with teams experiencing a high level of success, but as the team progresses, more skills, problem-solving, and proofing are needed to succeed.”

It was entertaining to see the response of the dogs when being introduced to the rat in the little cage. Then it was off into the ring to see if they could alert to a tube with a rat actually in it. Then there was the climb onto a bail of hay and for the real adventurous ... a run through the tunnel! It was a fun time!

Sometimes referred to as “the poor Swiss farmer’s horse,” the Grosser Schweizer Sennenhund would be hitched to a wagon or cart for the trip to market. Today, we celebrate the history of our breed through draft tests designed to mimic the types of obstacles a working Swissy may have had to negotiate while pulling a cart. Standing calm in harness and working steadily, dog and handler demonstrate their proficiency to work as a team to navigate a set course and earn various levels of draft titles. Draft Swissies are also useful in yard work; hauling debris, rocks, sand, etc. and have been seen providing rides to small children in neighborhoods and parades.

Judy Skorup began her drafting activities in 2006 when she chaired the Draft Test at the Great Pyrenees Club of America National Specialty in Lancaster, PA. Since then she has worked all of the stewarding jobs at Bernese Mt. Dog and Greater Swiss Mt. Dog Draft tests. With Draft titles on two Great Pyrenees, Judy completed her Greater Swiss Mt. Dog Draft Judge apprenticeship. She has judged Draft tests for Swissies, Pyrs, Saint Bernards and Leonbergers.

Join in this event to learn the basics for competitive competition or just for fun! Carts will be available to give it a try.

♥ Name: Queensboro Embroidered Men's AP3 All-Purpose Performance Polo
MAGS Price: $25
Style #: 1424
Sizes: S, M, L, XL, 2XL + $2, 3XL + $3

For quality, versatility and value the Queensboro AP3 All-Purpose Performance Polo is in a class of its own. That is why it is our best-selling polo! Why do we call this shirt the All-Purpose Polo? It is 100% wrinkle-resistant and never needs ironing, so it is great for travelling. It is also 100% moisture-wicking and barely even needs to go in the dryer. The All-Purpose Polo is medium weight, so it feels fantastic while staying put or on the go. Finally, the fabric is slightly textured, so it wears and looks just right for professional, athletic or casual wear. This shirt is perfect for working indoors or out in the heat. An innovative fabric-dyeing process uses about 10% of the water normally required to produce garments, which is terrific for the environment, while at the same time creating 100% color fastness. The color of this shirt will not fade even after 1,000 washes!

Features include:

- 100% polyester performance fabric
- Tag-free Queensboro label
- Moisture-wicking
- Wrinkle resistant
- Stain resistant
- 100% color fast
- Knit collar
- 3-button placket with dyed-to-match buttons
- Classic length hemmed sleeves

Features include

- 8 oz. 50% cotton, 50% polyester
- Double-needle stitching throughout
- Double-lined hood
- Pouch pocket; matching drawcord
- Ribbed spandex sleeve cuffs and waistband

When you talk about The Classic Pullover Hoodie you are talking about this garment. The 8 ounce 50% cotton/50% polyester fabric is heavy enough for Fall and Spring but not so heavy or bulky you can't wear it inside. Comforting the way only a great hoodie can be, solid construction, classic colors and unisex sizes up to 3XL makes this great shirt a stylish favorite for cooler days.
